JCBT may take slower approach to inkeepers tax hike

BY BOB DEMAREE

Members of the Jefferson County Board of Tourism said on Monday that a proposal to increase the county's Innkeepers Tax will likely not see action for at least a year.

Increasing the tax, currently at 5% on all guest lodgings in the county, has been under consideration by board members in recent months as a way to collect more money from tourists to then be used to support existing tourism and grow an industry city officials say brings in about $40 million annually.

Board member Jim Bartlett said he anticipates that an initiative on the increase won't likely occur until next year, or even possibly 2024 "depending on the complexity of the plan that we come up with."

Redevelopment Authority holds first meeting on pool finance

BY BOB DEMAREE

Madison's newly formed Redevelopment Authority unanimously ratified a Madison City Council resolution approving a lease agreement that will allow it to finance renovations to Crystal Beach pool through the issuance of revenue bonds was unanimously ratified by the at its inaugural meeting Thursday.

Prior to the group's inaugural meeting on Thursday, the members — David Ott, Ashley Pennington and Kevin Watkins — were officially sworn in to serve on the Redevelopment Authority. The first order of business was then to elect officers — Ott as president, Pennington as vice president and Watkins as secretary-treasurer.

Crystal Beach Swimming Pool was constructed in 1938 during the Great Depression by the Works Progress Administration, and is known for its iconic semi-circular "Seashore" design.

"There's not another pool like Crystal Beach in the country, and I'm not sure there's going to be another new pool like Crystal Beach," said Madison Mayor Bob Courtney. "The historical character of the pool is one that is very important to preserve. It's a one of a kind."

However, the pool is suffering from severe structural damage and deterioration. After renovations began last fall it was discovered when the liner was removed in January that the damage was more extensive than anticipated. Structural damage includes crumbling concrete and pipes and filters that failed pressure tests. Over the years there had been patchwork repairs but now major improvements were needed.

The resolution passed by the Redevelopment Authority provides for leasing rental bonds to be issued not to exceed $4,900,000 to provide what will be needed to finance demolition of the current pool and design and construction of a new pool with a goal of being completed by late summer next year. The bonds will be for a period of up to 20 years.

Thomas Pittman, an attorney with Barnes and Thornburg of Indianapolis, explained Indiana law limits the ability of the city's Redevelopment Commission to directly issue debt, but by establishing a Redevelopment Authority it is able to issue the bonds and lease the project to the commission. Pittman noted the Redevelopment Authority "is a financing vehicle that Indiana law allows and is very frequently used around the state.

Gary Smith, a CPA with Reedy Financial Group, the financial consultant on the project, said that typically there would be a property tax increase to fund the debt service payments but with a 6.27% increase in the overall certified assessed value of the community that opens an opportunity to fund capital.

BPWS rejects, rebids pool demo

BY BOB DEMAREE

With all five bids received recently for demolition of Crystal Beach Pool considered — and the city urgently trying to complete a pool replacement project before the end of next summer — Madison's Board of Public Work and Safety (BPWS) held a rare special meeting on Friday morning to rebid the demolition.

"We're doing a lot of lifting in about half the time," said Madison Mayor Bob Courtney, on the city efforts to have a new pool by late summer next year.

The board approved rejecting all bids for the demolition of the existing Crystal Beach pool, which must be demolished before a new pool can be constructed at the site, and approved rebidding the work as soon as possible.

Tony Steinhardt III, the city's economic director, said the low bidder for the demolition was Innovative Demolition Services at a considerably lower cost of $68,725. However, based upon a review by the city's architects and engineers the bid was deemed non-complete, and the remaining bids were in excess of the city's budget.

The other bids for demolition, opened on Sept. 19, were Sedam Contracting at $277,400, Green Demolition Contractors at $299,800, O'Rourke at $310,000 and Wooldridge Construction Group at $398,416.13.

Steinhardt said the city's architect is working to redefine the scope of the demolition to hopefully bring the project within budget for the demolition. The redefined scope of the demolition is being advertised for new bids to be received at another special BPWS meeting on Tuesday, Oct. 11.

The board also approved three change orders for the Crystal Beach poolhouse, which Nicole Schell, the city's director of planning, said is hopefully the last change orders for that project.

One change is to add an electrical disconnect to the elevator shaft at a cost of $1,507. Schell said the contractor selected a different elevator than what the design team had intended, and a disconnect is required for the elevator that's was installed.

Another change order is for family room flooring and labor at $2,127. Schell said there is a section of the floor near the women's lockerroom that is not level and does not drain from shower area, so tile is being added to level it to drain properly.

The final change was in the deck railing to meet code

Madison School Board terminates Hensler's contract

BY BOB DEMAREE

Madison School Board at a special meeting on Thursday terminated the contract of Bonnie Hensler as director of finance and human resources and chief compliance officer for Madison Consolidated Schools.

Board members David Storie, Jodi Yancey, Lori Slygh and Jay Roney voted in support of a recommendation by MCS Superintendent Dr. Teresa Brown with board member Larry Henry abstaining due to the fact that he was unable to attend an executive meeting in which the matter was discussed.

Hensler had served the school corporation since Aug. 8, 2013.

on all rooms in hotels, motels, bed and breakfasts, Airbnbs and other lodgings, was established in 1981 at 4% and increased to 5% in 1987 with no changes in the last 35 years other than the growth of the industry.

Commissioner David Bramer, who serves as president of the board, said delaying a tax increase for a year is a good idea "to see where we're at" with funds coming from the innkeepers tax, considering the longer range financial impact generated by the Fairfield Inn and Suites by Marriott, which opened in July of last year at a renovated former Old Cotton Mill, and other growth in the industry.

"There are a lot of key players that we need input from to be sure we're making legitimate decisions that have the greatest positive impact," Bartlett said.

Curtis Chatham, the board's treasurer, reported that $66,009.62 was generated by the Jefferson County innkeepers tax in August — a 12% increase over that month one year ago when the August total was $57,858.58. The innkeepers tax has collected a total of $391,421.59 for this year — almost $90,000 more than last year's eight month total of $301,492.75 — and Chatham said JCBT currently has $772,600.24 in funds.

"The growth in assessed value allows any unit of government like us or the county or the school, to capture additional revenue without increasing tax rates," said Courtney. "And each property owner is still protected by constitutional property tax caps which limit how much taxes any unit of government can levy.

"Our goal here is to make strategic investments across the community that help us grow assessed values to create an organic stream of revenue that we can then re-invest and also do more public improvements in projects like this," Courtney added. "When we have growth in assessed values that creates revenue without any unit of the government having to go out and actually increase the property tax rates."

Courtney said such growth creates an opportunity for the city. "When we're in an environment like we are right in now where we have rising property values, that creates revenues for us where we can model conservatively then also commit to public improvement projects now."

Courtney said the city is in the process of compiling draft sources and uses towards the costs for the Crystal Beach pool improvement that includes the bonds up $4.9 million and other funds such as $1 million in American Rescue Plan funds with the City Council in the process of amending the city's original plan on how its $2.7 million ARP funds will be allocated.

"The sources and uses will be calibrated once the costs are known about the pool and its demolition," he said.

Courtney said the city is also in the process of identifying financial participation from other entities towards the costs of the Crystal Beach work. "This swimming pool is used by the entire community, not just residents from the city of Madison," Courtney said. "In fact, we make no distinction on anybody that comes to enjoy the pool. We're investing a lot of money to be sure what we're designing is a lot of things, first and foremost it honors the historical architecture of the pool, but it also modernizes it for safety, abilities, multi-generational, all ages and historic preservation."

Because the pool is also available those from outside the city limits, Courtney said he's talking to other municipal governments to encourage participation in the financing of Crystal Beach with annual contributions "that over a 20-year period adds up to be a pretty substantial amount of money. It takes a little pressure off of the entire community who is enjoying the swimming pool." He said the city is still working on that but has had positive conversations about that with Jefferson County governmental officials.

Tony Steinhardt III, the city's economic director, said the Redevelopment Authority could possibly be utilized by the city for future projects where financing might be necessary.

Tony Steinhardt III, the city's economic director, said the Redevelopment Authority could possibly be utilized by the city for future projects where financing might be necessary. "This board is in existence as a financing tool and toolkit for the city of Madison so other projects could follow the same format and process." Steinhardt said.

Courtney said the Authority's focus is on public improvements and not limited to single assets, with a mission to "finance, improve, construct, reconstruct, renovate, purchase, lease, acquire or equip local public improvements, and lease those local public improvements to the redevelopment commission."

Steinhardt said that in some communities redevelopment authorities have been used to finance fire stations, roads and streets and various other improvements.

"Crystal Beach is important to our community in so many ways and we are closing in on the final plans to replace it in a manner that maintains its historical character," Courtney said. "Plans to replace Crystal Beach have been discussed for over 25 years and now we are at a critical point where it just has to be done. I am really grateful for city council's and the community's support and acknowledgment of the importance of this pool and its rich history."

was $1,495,326 and the lowest of the three contractors who bid on the work. All Star Paving, of Seymour, Indiana, submitted a combined bid of $1,795,139 and Sedam Contracting, of Hanover, Indiana, submitted separate bids opted to no do a combined bid.

Under Schutte's separate bids, the cost for the mural lot and comfort station would have been $975,682, to Sedam's $1,090,000 and All Star Paving's $1,112,923. Schutte's separate cost for the gateway enhancements was $669,176 to Sedam's $690,000 and All Star Paving's $692,216.

Nicole Schell, the city's director of planning, said work on the projects is expected to begin in November.

Our Southern Indiana Regional Development Authority has awarded a total of $2,556,200 in READI (Regional Economic Acceleration and Development Initiative) grant funds for the three Destination Madison projects

Only a portion of those funds have been officially allocated — the $879,283.20 for the Mulberry Street Arts Corridor — but the city expects the US 421 Gateway project will be authorized. Schell updated that Indiana Economic Development Corporation approval has not yet formally been received for the Gateway portion but they anticipate that coming soon.

With the total cost of the three Destination Madison projects coming in more than $1 million below what the city was awarded in READI funds, Madison Mayor Bob Courtney noted that should leave more funds for other Destination Madison projects.

Sunrise for a stormy day

Mark Campbell

Equipment operators at the Shoppes at Sunrise Crossings work site on Madison's hilltop were busy moving dirt and burying stormwater drainage pipe Thursday as site preparation continues on the commercial development and stormwater detention basin at Clifty Drive and Michigan Road. Stormwater features included in the development, as well as a new 437 cubic foot detention basin, are designed to prevent the shopping center from exacerbating the city's storm water issues and actually mitigate some of Madison's existing problems.

In a findings of fact that was approved by the school board and released Friday, Hensler was cited for altering her time off by deleting days she had previously reported being off work, which resulted in her giving days back. Information presented at the private board conference on Sept. 14, allegedly established that Hensler failed to follow the procedure of her own department when she altered her time off records.

In the findings of fact, Hensler told the board the altered times were unintentional.

Additionally, the findings of fact stated that during the private conference Hensler admitted she did not complete a Ivy Tech preparation course or SHRM (Society for Human Resource Management) certification test in which the school corporation had extended more than $1,800 for her attend.

The findings of fact cited that the superintendent recommended the termination due to "insubordination, neglect of duty and other good or just cause."

In other business, the school board approved a school improvement plan for Madison Junior High School, which Brown said is a template required annually by the Indiana Department of Education. The deadline to have the plan completed is prior to the next school board meeting.

TODAY IN HISTORY

TODAY'S HIGHLIGHT IN HISTORY:

On Sept. 24, 1960, the USS Enterprise, the first nuclear-powered aircraft carrier, was launched at Newport News, Virginia.

ON THIS DATE:

In 1789, President George Washington signed a Judiciary Act establishing America's federal court system and creating the post of attorney general.

In 1869, thousands of businessmen were ruined in a Wall Street panic known as "Black Friday" after financiers Jay Gould and James Fisk attempted to corner the gold market.

In 1957, the Los Angeles-bound Brooklyn Dodgers played their last game at Ebbets Field, defeating the Pittsburgh Pirates 2-0.

In 1963, the U.S. Senate ratified a treaty with Britain and the Soviet Union limiting nuclear testing.

In 1969, the trial of the Chicago Eight (later seven) began. (Five were later convicted of crossing state lines to incite riots at the 1968 Democratic convention, but the convictions were ultimately overturned.)

In 1996, the United States and 70 other countries became the first to sign a treaty at the United Nations to end all testing and development of nuclear weapons. (The Comprehensive Nuclear Test Ban Treaty has yet to enter into force because of the refusal so far of eight nations — including the United States — to ratify it.)

In 2001, President George W. Bush ordered a freeze on the assets of 27 people and organizations with suspected links to terrorism, including Islamic militant Osama bin Laden, and urged other nations to do likewise.

In 2015, a stampede and crush of Muslim pilgrims occurred at an intersection near a holy site in Saudi Arabia; The Associated Press estimated that more than 2,400 people were killed, while the official Saudi toll stood at 769.

In 2019, House Speaker Nancy Pelosi launched a formal impeachment inquiry against President Donald Trump; the probe focused partly on whether Trump abused his presidential powers and sought help from the government of Ukraine to undermine Democratic foe Joe Biden. (Trump would be acquitted by the Republican-controlled Senate on two impeachment charges.)

In 2020, President Donald Trump's refusal to commit to a peaceful transfer of power if he were to lose the November election drew swift blowback from both parties in Congress, with Senate GOP leader Mitch McConnell saying that the winner "will be inaugurated on January 20th."

Ten years ago: President Barack Obama told the ABC talk show "The View" there was "no doubt" that the assault of the U.S. Consulate in Benghazi, Libya, that killed four Americans, including the U.S. ambassador, "wasn't just a mob action" but a sign of extremism in nations lacking stability. Republican presidential candidate Mitt Romney accused Obama of minimizing the Benghazi attack as a mere "bump in the road."

Five years ago: More than 200 NFL players kneeled or sat during the national anthem after President Donald Trump criticized the players' protests in a speech and a series of tweets. Trump signed a proclamation to replace his expiring travel ban on visitors from six Muslim-majority countries; citizens from eight countries would now face new restrictions on entry to the country. German Chancellor Angela Merkel won a fourth term in office, but voters weakened her conservatives and a nationalist, anti-migrant party surged into Germany's parliament.

One year ago: A Republican-backed review of the 2020 presidential election in Arizona's largest county ended without providing proof to support former President Donald Trump's false claims of a stolen election; the vote tally from a firm hired by Republican lawmakers found that President Joe Biden won in the county by 360 more votes than in the official results that were certified. California Gov. Gavin Newsom signed a law removing the word "alien" from various sections of the state code; the word, which was criticized as being dehumanizing and offensive, would be replaced with terms like "noncitizen" or "immigrant."

Today's Birthdays: Singer Phyllis "Jiggs" Allbut Sirico (The Angels) is 80. Political commentator Lou Dobbs is 77. Pro and College Football Hall of Famer Joe Greene is 76. Actor Gordon Clapp is 74. TODAY IN HISTORY

TODAY'S HIGHLIGHT IN HISTORY:

On Sept. 26, 1960, the first-ever debate between presidential nominees took place as Democrat John F. Kennedy and Republican Richard M. Nixon faced off before a national TV audience from Chicago.

ON THIS DATE:

In 1777, British troops occupied Philadelphia during the American Revolution.

In 1888, poet T.S. Eliot was born in St. Louis, Missouri.

In 1954, the Japanese commercial ferry Toya Maru sank during a typhoon in the Tsugaru Strait, claiming more than 1,150 lives.

In 1986, William H. Rehnquist was sworn in as the 16th chief justice of the United States, while Antonin Scalia joined the Supreme Court as its 103rd member.

In 1990, the Motion Picture Association of America announced it had created a new rating, NC-17, to replace the X rating.

In 1991, four men and four women began a two-year stay inside a sealed-off structure in Oracle, Arizona, called Biosphere 2. (They emerged from Biosphere on this date in 1993.)

In 1996, President Clinton signed a bill ensuring two-day hospital stays for new mothers and their babies.

In 2003, President George W. Bush and Russian President Vladimir Putin opened a two-day summit at Camp David.

In 2005, Army Pfc. Lynndie England was convicted by a military jury in Fort Hood, Texas, on six of seven counts stemming from the Abu Ghraib prison abuse scandal. (England was sentenced to three years in prison; she ended up serving half that time.)

In 2008, Hollywood screen legend and philanthropist Paul Newman died in Westport, Connecticut, at age 83.

In 2016, Republican Donald Trump and Democrat Hillary Clinton participated in their first debate of the presidential campaign at Hofstra University in New York; Clinton emphatically denounced Trump for keeping his personal tax returns and business dealings secret from voters while Trump repeatedly cast Clinton as a "typical politician."

In 2020, President Donald Trump nominated judge Amy Coney Barrett, a former clerk to the late Justice Antonin Scalia, to the Supreme Court, to fill the seat left vacant by the death of liberal icon Ruth Bader Ginsburg. (Barrett would be confirmed the following month, days before the November election.) More than 150 people gathered in the Rose Garden for Trump's introduction of Barrett; few in the crowd wore masks to protect against the coronavirus, and in the days that followed, a succession of attendees reported that they had contracted COVID-19.

Ten years ago: President Barack Obama and Republican Mitt Romney both campaigned in the battleground state of Ohio. Egypt's new President Mohammed Morsi, making his debut on the global stage at the United Nations, said he would not rest until the civil war in Syria was brought to an end.

Five years ago: Republican Sen. Bob Corker of Tennessee announced that he would not seek reelection. Former Alabama Chief Justice Roy Moore won the state's Republican primary for U.S. Senate, defeating incumbent Sen. Luther Strange, who'd been backed by President Donald Trump. (Moore would lose the December special election to Democrat Doug Jones.) Amid criticism that the federal response to Hurricane Maria in Puerto Rico was insufficient, the administration said it was sending a flotilla of ships and thousands more military personnel to the island to address the growing humanitarian crisis there. Saudi Arabia announced that women would be allowed to drive there for the first time, starting in the summer of 2018.

One year ago: The Rolling Stones launched their pandemic-delayed "No Filter" tour in St. Louis without their drummer of nearly six decades, Charlie Watts, who had died in August at age 80. "Moulin Rouge! The Musical," a jukebox adaptation of Baz Luhrmann's hyperactive 2001 movie, won the best new musical crown at the Tony Awards as Broadway looked back to honor shows that were shuttered by COVID-19; "The Inheritance" by Matthew Lopez was named the best new play. George Frayne, whose band Commander Cody and His Lost Planet Airmen enjoyed a cult following in the 1970s with songs including "Hot Rod Lincoln," died at 77.

Today's Birthdays: Former baseball All-Star Bobby Shantz is 97. Country singer David Frizzell is 81. Actor Kent McCord is 80. Television host Anne Robinson is 78. Singer Bryan Ferry is 77. Actor Mary Beth Hurt is 76. Actor James Keane is 70. Rock singer-musician Cesar Rosas (Los Lobos) is 68. Country singer Carlene Carter is 67. Actor Linda Hamilton is 66. at a cost of $18,547. Schell said the new railing is too short to meet code, so a small metal rail is being added above it that will blend in with the structure. She noted the deck height for the new railing without the change order is actually the same as the original railing, and because it is new the railing must meet code for American Disabilities Act compliance.

Schell said the lower height of the rail was missed in the design "because we hoped to reuse the materials but we weren't able to."

Deputy Mayor Mindy McGee updated that striping on Main Street has been completed except for turn arrows and turn only markings. "All crosswalks, stop bars, straight lines have been done in time for Chautauqua, and looking good so far," she said.

Can you time the stock market?

Over the years, many systems and many experts have tried to do just that. Some have succeeded, but mostly only for a short period of success. The stock market is freewheeling and designed to move the way investors feel it should move. Of course, the problem is that millions of investors all think they have the correct answer.

With the insanity of the current volatility, it becomes clear that no one can move the market, and no one can have any specific influence on the ups and downs of the market. There are too many outside influences that can contribute to the overall income. These are based on many factors, such as unemployment, interest rates, military conflicts, a presidential remark, and a global fear of a pandemic. All these factors build into investors' decisions and how the market moves.

How do you decide to keep your money exposed to market risk or when to begin to move to safety? Here is a secret that you may not know.

"Everyone runs to safety at some time in their life!"

Unfortunately, fear and greed raise their ugly head, and emotions begin to enter the decision process. Should I sell and take my profits? Should I wait another week and then decide? How will I know what to do? If the market comes back, I will sell!

These and other excuses have caused countless people to miss a golden opportunity by breaking the Golden Rule of the stock market. "You can't go broke making a profit."
Here is a suggestion, look at your current situation, consider your goals, and if you have profit in your market account, remove some or all of it and lock in the profits.

Does that seem too simple? Why don't more people make the logical decision to grab profit? The economy is shaky and is likely to be that way for some time. Consider liquidating and locking in the gain.

Guess what? Your stress will go down, and you may be even closer to your goals than you think.

Madison blows lead twice in 4-3 loss to Lawrenceburg

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Madison boys soccer let a two-goal lead slip away twice in a 4-3 loss to Lawrenceburg at home on Thursday.

The Cubs' Ian Eiriksson scored two goals in the game's first 30 minutes to put Madison on top 2-0 and, after Lawrenceburg got on the board with its first marker, Ramon Alvarado Paz scored to give the Cubs a 3-1 lead.

But Lawrenceburg dominated the rest of the match, scoring three unanswered goals to seize the win in a showdown between two potential sectional opponents.

Madison, now 8-3-2 on the season, travels to Bedford North Lawrence on Saturday and hosts Class 2A No. 14 Providence on Tuesday.

LADY REBELS FALL TO MILAN

Southwestern girls soccer dropped a 2-1 decision at Milan on Wednesday.

After a hot afternoon gave way to a cool evening as storms rolled in, the Rebels fell behind 1-0 in the second half but tied tied the contest on a Kearsty Cizek goal in the 59th minute. But the Indians picked up the game-winner a few minutes later to fend off the Rebels.

"I was still proud of our girls. For the second night in a row they played with only one sub and with several filling new positions," Southwestern coach Nancy Totten said.

"Aleana Meador and Jenny Tankersley had many great plays on defense for us."

Southwestern, now 2-8-1 overall and 0-7 in the Ohio River Valley Conference, hosts Trinity Lutheran on Monday.

CARROLL GIRLS LOSE TO RISING SUN

Carroll County girls soccer lost 1-0 at Rising Sun on Thursday.

Laila Miller stopped 14 shots in goal for the Panthers.

Carroll, now 9-7 on the season, competes in the Switzerland County Tournament today and travels to North Oldham on Monday.

Shawe's Alderman wins Great Pumpkin Invitational meet

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Shawe's Calli Alderman raced to victory and Southwestern's girls were the team runner-up in the 29th Annual Great Pumpkin Cross Country Invitational in Versailles on Thursday.

Alderman, a senior, crossed the line in 19:36.2, four seconds ahead of runner-up Hailey Webster of Austin. Southwestern's young girls squad — the Rebels compete with six freshmen — scored 58 points to finish second behind Austin's 38 points in the 10-team field.

The Rebels were led by freshman Victoria Gammons, who ran sixth in 20:56.8. Olivia Simpson was seventh in 21:12.8, Kinsten Long was 12th in 22:28.1, Addison Nussbaum was 16th in 23:24.8, Kaylee Renschler was 20th in 23:53.0, Claudia Oliver was 22nd in 24:07.7, and Riley Zellers was 24th in 24:18.5.

"The boys were without four of their top seven runners tonight. I was really happy with how many of the boys stepped up and had their best times ever tonight," Southwestern coach Zach Nussbaum said. "The girls just continue to get better and tonight was their best overall performance of the season. Both of these teams are putting themselves in position to advance in the state tournament and I am excited to see what they can do."

David Campbell

Shawe senior Calli Alderman won the Great Pumpkin Invitational at South Ripley on Thursday in Versailles.

Madison placed fourth as a team with 112 points. Cadence Traylor was third overall with a time of 19:52.0, Aimee Rijnart was 13th in 23:01.1, Eliza Burnett was 23rd in 24:13.3, Haleigh Pyles was 38th in 26:00.5, Maya Kemp was 48th in 28:17.7, and Addie Nott was 49th in 28:38.6.

"I was proud of all the girls tonight as all but one had a season best or personal best. Cadence really pulled everything together and showed why she is part of this area's elite runners with her complete race," Madison coach Josh Wilber said. "It was tough because we were without Ava Spencer who is number two for us so that would have changed the scoring dramatically. However, that is when you look to the depth of the team which Aimee and Eliza really worked hard to help us place fourth."

Reds snap Boston's win streak with 5-1 home victory

CINCINNATI — Jonathan India and Kyle Farmer each drove in two runs, Donovan Solano added a solo homer and the Cincinnati Reds snapped their eight-game home losing streak against the Boston Red Sox with a 5-1 victory on Wednesday night.

India drove in Stuart Fairchild twice, including the tie-breaking run in Cincinnati's three-run fifth. India stole second before Farmer delivered a two-run bloop single to short right field in the Reds' first home win over Boston since June 13, 2008.

Farmer snapped an 0-for-18 slide with the hit.

Solano provided an insurance run with a lined shot to deep right-center field in the eighth.

Chase Anderson (2-3) gave up three hits and one run with no walks and four strikeouts while earning his second straight win in his fifth start of the season.

Anderson, who's with his third organization this season, also hit a batter.

Fernando Cruz, Reiver Sanmartin and Derek Law combined for 3 1/3 innings of three-hit, shutout relief before Alexis Díaz got the final two outs, starting a game-ending double play for his eighth save.

The Reds took a 1-0 lead in the third on Fairchild's leadoff single to right and a two-out wild pitch that India cashed in with an RBI single to left.

The Red Sox tied it in the fourth. Rafael Devers led off with a chopper up the third base line that went for a hit against the infield shift.

Devers went to third on Xander Bogaerts's single to left, setting up Alex Verdugo's sacrifice fly.

Joey Votto wore a Roberto Clemente Pirates jersey during a pregame ceremony honoring him as the Reds' nominee for the Roberto Clemente Award.

Votto is out for the season after undergoing surgery to repair injuries to his left shoulder and bicep.

Brewers 5, Reds 1 (Thursday) — Kolten Wong hit a career-high three homers and drove in five runs, helping Brandon Woodruff and the Milwaukee Brewers beat the Cincinnati Reds 5-1 on Thursday night.

Wong hit a two-run drive in the second inning against Hunter Greene. He hit another two-run shot in the sixth off Dauri Moreta and a solo drive in the eighth against Joel Kuhnel.

Wong has a career-high 15 homers on the season.

The second-place Brewers (80-70) opened a four-game set against lowly Cincinnati with their second straight win. They remained 2 1/2 games back of Milwaukee for the third NL wild card.

Kyle Farmer hit his 13th homer in the sixth to account for Cincinnati's only run. Greene (4-13) struck out eight in five innings.

The NL Central matchup drew a crowd of 9,889, the sixth under 10,000 this season at Great American Ball Park.

After throwing 47 pitches at least 100 miles per hour in a 1-0 loss at St. Louis on Saturday, Greene reached triple figures 15 times against Milwaukee, according to Statcast.

Outfielder Michael Siani made his major league debut, boosting to a major league-high 66 the number of players used by the Reds this season.

Federer bids farewell in last match before retirement

BY HOWARD FENDRICH
AP TENNIS WRITER

LONDON — This day, this match, had to come, of course, for Roger Federer, and for tennis, just as it inevitably must for every athlete in every sport.

Roger Federer

Federer was bidding farewell Friday night with one last contest before he heads into retirement at age 41 after an illustrious career that included 20 Grand Slam titles and role as a statesman for tennis. He was scheduled to play a doubles match alongside his rival Rafael Nadal for Team Europe in the Laver Cup against Frances Tiafoe and Jack Sock of Team World.

"For me, just personally, (it was) sad in the first moment, when I came to the conclusion it's the best decision," Federer said in an interview with The Associated Press this week about his emotions when realizing it was time to go. "I kind of held it in at first, then fought it off. But I could feel the pain."

When the players from both squads were introduced before the initial singles matchup of the three-day team event at the O2 Arena, Federer was the last to emerge from a tunnel leading out to the black court, wearing his team's blue zip-up jacket and black pants. Fans who were loud enough for Nadal, Novak Djokovic, Andy Murray and others really let Federer hear their support and gratitude, rising for a lengthy standing ovation while lifting their phone cameras to capture the moment.

When there were breaks in the action during the matches before his, Federer wandered over to the stands and signed autograph after autograph — on programs, tennis balls, whatever was thrust his way by spectators.

"The crowd was electric," Sock said after losing the opening singles match Friday afternoon to two-time 2022 Grand Slam runner-up Casper Ruud 6-4, 5-7, 10-7. "I can only imagine what it's going to be like for the rest of the weekend. And obviously tonight with ... two of the 'GOATs' playing together."

In the second match — which was briefly interrupted when an environmental protester made it on to the court and lit his arm on fire before being carried away by security guards — Stefanos Tsitsipas beat Diego Schwartzman 6-2, 6-1 to put Team Europe ahead 2-0.

Those lucky enough to have tickets came from all over, no distance too far to travel, no expense too great.

"I have such mixed feelings about this," said Indrani Maitra, a 49-year-old from India. "I'm really glad I'm being able to catch his last match. But I'm really sad this is his last match."

She came with her daughter, Anushka Verma, a 19-year-old student at University of California, Berkeley, for what they said was their first time to watch tennis live. Both wore blue hats for the occasion, Maitra's with Federer's "RF" insignia, Verma's with Nadal's bull horns logo.

There were lines hundreds of people deep at the "Game, Set, Merch" shops in and outside the venue. Jacob Benaion, a 61-year-old from Brazil, said he waited for more than an hour with his son, 32-year-old Moyses.

"I love tennis. My first favorite was Ivan Lendl. After that, Pete Sampras. And after that, Roger Federer. And Roger Federer is the best one of all," Benaion said. "He is a legend and he helped tennis grow around the world. He is an ambassador of tennis."

This goodbye follows that of Serena Williams, the owner of 23 major singles championships, at the U.S. Open three weeks ago after a third-round loss. It leaves questions about the future of a game he and she dominated, and transcended, for decades.

The Laver Cup, which is in its fifth edition, was founded by Federer's management company and uses a format quite different from a standard tournament. So a victory for him and Nadal would not mean advancing to another round.

Instead, Federer made clear that his surgically repaired right knee — the last of three operations came shortly after a loss in the Wimbledon quarterfinals in July 2021, which will go down as his final official singles match — is in no shape to allow him to continue, and he will not compete beyond Friday.

"It will be awesome to see Roger back on court. No one really knows what to expect physically from him, where he's at, but ... we'll enjoy every minute of it," Sock said. "Give him a big hug at the end, win or lose."

Just before Ruud vs. Sock began, Federer rose from a black couch just off the sideline and walked over to offer Ruud a pat on the shoulder. After his victory, Ruud said about Federer: "All the players will miss him."

"Roger is a unicorn in our sport," Tsitsipas said this week. "He has all my respect, all my appreciation for what he has offered to tennis today. It's something that, for sure, is not going to be forgotten for thousands of years. He has that charisma and purity and aura about him that made him kind of invincible when he was on the court."

Tiafoe's take on Federer was similar: "I don't think we'll see another guy like Roger, the way he played, and the grace he did it with, and who he is as an individual."

There have been similar sentiments expressed by many inside the sport and out in the time since Federer made public on Sept. 15 his plan to finish playing at the Laver Cup.

The last hurrah comes after a total of 103 tour-level titles on Federer's substantial resume and 1,251 wins in singles matches, both second only to Jimmy Connors in the Open era, which began in 1968. Federer's records include being the oldest No. 1 in ATP rankings history — he returned to the top spot at 36 in 2018 — and most consecutive weeks there (his total weeks mark was eclipsed by Djokovic).

At the height of his powers, Federer appeared in a record 10 consecutive Grand Slam finals, winning eight, from 2005-07. Trace it out to 2010 and he reached 18 of 19 major finals.

More than the numbers, folks will remember that powerful forehand, one-handed backhand and flawless footwork, a spectacularly effective serve and eagerness to get to the net, a willingness to reinvent aspects of his game and — the part he's proudest of — unusual longevity. Then, too, there is his persona away from the court.

All of which is part of why the truth Friday was that the eventual winner of Federer-Nadal vs. Tiafoe-Sock, the score, the statistics — none of that would matter, was all so entirely beside the point. The day was, after all, about the farewell itself. Or, better, the farewells: Federer's to tennis, to the fans, to his colleagues. And, naturally, each of those entities' farewells to Federer.

Emma Long was 18-for-18 hitting with four kills and added six digs, Riley Scroggins had three kills on 7-for-8 hitting and two blocks, and Parker Mefford was 12-for-14 passing with 18 digs and went 4-for-4 serving with an ace.

"We were out-matched tonight but I thought Parker Mefford and Raygan Crawford did a good job in the back row for us defensively," Southwestern coach Chris Johnson said.

Southwestern, now 8-12 overall, hosts the Marc Baum Memorial Tournament today. The Rebels then host New Washington on Tuesday.

Minor home repair leads to major hot mess

AMY DICKINSON
ASK AMY

Dear Amy — I'm a middle-aged man.

My sister who lives out of state and stays in touch with hometown friends connected me with one of her friends "Susan," who needed help with a minor home repair.

I did this for her, and we discussed a future flooring project. Due to her budget constraints I suggested that we could do the flooring job together (I was mildly interested in her). I thought that maybe I creeped her out, because I never heard from her again.

Fast-forward two years. I connected with a woman on a dating app who is friends with both my sister and Susan.

The new woman, "Jill," told me on our first date that she and Susan are lifelong friends and that Susan had told her that she is in love with me from our first meeting, two years ago. All without me knowing!

Jill said that we couldn't be together because it would be a betrayal to Susan.

Jill and I both really hit it off and agree that our chemistry is amazing. We discussed at length the difficulty of the situation.

Jill told me that she is going to see other people. I'm a bit disappointed and confused.

Should I contact Susan? — Stuck

Dear Stuck — "Jill's" interpretation of "girl code" seems to be that if a friend confesses to a case of unexpressed and unrequited love, then Jill must stay away, regardless of her own feelings, impulses, or instincts.

Jill might have misreported or exaggerated her friend "Susan's" feelings for you, but I am going to venture a take on this, that if Jill really wanted to have a second date with you, she would find a way to justify it - especially if the chemistry between you is "amazing."

You could certainly contact Susan to follow up on her flooring — or other — needs, but you should ask yourself if you want to invite involvement with someone who is so passive and hard to read.

Husband confronts the call of his elder libido

AMY DICKINSON
ASK AMY

Dear Amy: My wife has advanced dementia.

After four years of being her sole caregiver, I had to place her in assisted living memory care last year.

Time has shown it was the right thing to do.

That is the source of my dilemma. Our high school graduating class has a virtual group on social media. I wrote about my wife's dementia and my loneliness without her.

Last week I received an email from a woman with whom I had a lengthy, very steamy, lusty affair in 11th grade, suggesting that we might re-establish our acquaintance. We haven't communicated since we went our separate ways, many decades ago.

I am sorely tempted to accept her suggestion.

I have a photo of us at our prom, my arm around an exceptionally pretty girl in a strapless gown who liked to make out in secluded places. She played my teenage libido like a yo-yo.

I haven't responded yet because I took an oath of fidelity to my wife "until death do us part," which I have honored.

But I wonder if her dying brain doesn't meet that standard?

Am I not entitled to some happiness, even as my wife descends into a deepening fog?

— Extremely Conflicted Husband

Dear Conflicted: Communicating with old friends from high school will help you to reconnect with the man you once were, before this disease took so much from your family.

But any person who would respond to your report of grief and loneliness by immediately implying a sexual reconnection is once again "playing your libido like a yo-yo."

As long as you don't abandon your wife, I don't view this situation as adultery, but I believe that your emotional needs would best be served by a relationship that is supportive, kind, and careful.

Yes, you deserve some happiness, but you should be discerning about where you are most likely to find it.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — The greatest satisfaction may come from the rewards you earn through your own efforts. You might take pride in your family connections but try not to display a sense of entitlement. Focus on romance and affection.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — You can stand out in a crowd. People like to spend time with successful people, so it is to your advantage to look your best. This can be a good day to make promises or tie up funds in a binding financial arrangement.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — Forge forward with an attitude that reflects forgiving and forgetting. A partner or loved one is willing to pardon your past mistakes or misunderstandings. This could be a good time to repay a debt or settle a bill.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — Get out there, be proud of yourself, toot your own horn and don't let a social outing seem like a spectator sport. Join in with group activities and make new friends by sharing your thoughts and deeds.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — You are a friend indeed if you often lend a helping hand. Unplug and engage in the world around you. You may decide to buy something that excites your passions. Trust that you can make sound decisions.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Someone might be attracted to an air of mystery and intense passion for success. You may think you are just being yourself, but other people could find you tantalizing. Enjoy romance and social activities.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — A trusted adviser can point you in the right direction. Don't think you cannot enjoy yourself just because of a lack of funds or a tight schedule. Find creative ways to have fun and meet new people this weekend.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — If you've briefly lost your sense of purpose, a friend or partner may help you find it. A loved one might trigger your enthusiasm or a friend might introduce you to a new set of acquaintances who spark new interests.

ASTROLOGY

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Taking someone for granted might grate on their nerves; so will expecting too much from loved ones or coworkers. You could be too optimistic; be sure you really have the money to pay for everything you want.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — Keep it humble and tether that ego — overconfidence in your position could cause you to receive a comeuppance. You should be prepared for the chance that your plans could fail and have a backup idea handy.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — You are equipped with well-tailored skills that are appropriate for handling tight schedules and precision work. Dig into your bag of tricks and past experiences to overcome problems and build a better future.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — Only a poor craftsman blames his tools. You can make headway unless you are careless with your money, possessions or workmanship. Rather than buying something new, you can recycle or make something else work.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — Maintain energies in balance. You may hope that a promise will be honored and have faith that optimism will be rewarded. Do not take generosity for granted when it is more appropriate to pay your own way.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Money may be wasted on an impulse item that you regret buying later. It isn't necessary to show out or to be extravagant to impress someone. Your ability to dig into details and think before acting is more important.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — Being enthusiastic can encourage others to do their best but overdoing it could leave you vulnerable if things go wrong. Remain levelheaded and have respect for matters of importance. Don't be distracted by social events.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — Always aim to do your best and operate on the highest principles. Your wants and needs might be well under control and used to good purpose. A generous and forgiving spirit will help you handle difficult people.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — Your horizons can be expanded. Read up on a subject to gain valuable insights or to make a hobby more enjoyable. Follow the lead of an experienced pal and try something new and different.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Show off your skills and experience — make the best use of your expertise by helping a friend or family member. You may be surprised to learn that you are highly desirable and attractive to a romantic partner.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — Always walk your talk and practice what you preach. If you expect others to work hard, you need to do the same. This may be a good time to concentrate on being more organized so that you are prepared for any eventuality.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — Agree to disagree. A logical response to an emotional issue might put things in perspective. Focus on common interests rather than pointing out the differences. This is a good time to forgive and forget a mistake.

NCAA gives LSU 1-year probation for ex-assistant's conduct

BATON ROUGE, La. — The NCAA placed LSU's football program on one year of probation Thursday after determining that former offensive line coach James Cregg violated recruiting restrictions during the 2020 football season.

The NCAA Division I Committee on Infractions found that Cregg violated restrictions against in-person contact with prospective recruits during the COVID-19 pandemic, and provided improper inducements to a recruit.

The committee also issued a three-year "show cause" penalty against Cregg, meaning his own recruiting activities would be restricted for that period if he were hired by another NCAA member program.

"Although the (committee) has encountered more egregious conduct in past cases, the violations in this case represent intentional misconduct that should be of concern to the membership," the panel said. "The COVID-19 recruiting dead period was intended to protect the health and safety of prospects, student-athletes and institutional staff. It also leveled the playing field for recruiting at a time when government-imposed COVID-19 restrictions varied across the country."

The investigation also involved a former assistant director of recruiting, whose name has not been made public.

The NCAA still has a separate investigation going through its Independent Accountability Resolution Process (IARP) into alleged recruiting violations by former LSU basketball coach Will Wade, who was fired after last season, and into booster payments to football players made prior to recent rule changes allowing players to receive financial endorsement deals from program sponsors.

LSU fired Cregg in June 2021, citing alleged violations of NCAA recruiting rules. Cregg sued for breach of contract, arguing that he could not be fired for cause without an NCAA ruling on the allegations. A state district judge agreed, ordering LSU in August to pay Cregg $492,945 — the remainder of his contract.

LSU has said it planned to appeal that court ruling.

The NCAA investigation found Cregg arranged to greet a recruit and his family in September 2020 and gave the recruit a bag of used LSU gear.

Winless Bengals not panicking as they face 1-1 Jets

BY DENNIS WASZAK JR.
AP PRO FOOTBALL WRITER

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — There's no panic in Cincinnati.

Well, at least in the Bengals' locker room.

While social media is buzzing about the Bengals' 0-2 start, Joe Burrow has blocked it all out.

Literally.

The Bengals quarterback deleted Twitter and Instagram from his phone to eliminate any distractions.

"I've seen none of it," Burrow said. "I'm sure it's not a very good reaction, but I think it will be a different reaction as we get going here."

Cincinnati is looking to avoid its first 0-3 start since 2019, when it opened 0-11 in Zac Taylor's first year as coach before beating New York in Week 13. And there's some sense of optimism: The Bengals trailed by at least two touchdowns in both of their losses this season before mounting big comeback attempts. Dallas won last week's game 20-17 on a 50-yard field goal as time expired.

"Everyone is frustrated, but we're not panicking," Burrow insisted said. "Two games in, we've got 15 games left. Let's all just take a deep breath and relax.

"We're going to be fine. We're not worried about it."

Meanwhile, the Jets narrowly avoided opening 0-2 themselves with a stunning 31-30 comeback victory at Cleveland last Sunday.

Joe Flacco and New York trailed by 13 points with 1:55 remaining, but roared back with two touchdowns — sandwiched around a successful onside kick — to rally.

"We've won a few games here since I've been here that have been tough to come by and those have felt good," said Flacco, in his third season with the Jets. "But obviously, that one ranks up there pretty high just in terms of excitement, just because of the way that we were feeling a couple minutes before that."

And given the situation they were in, it's a feeling not many teams in similar spots have enjoyed.

The Jets became the first team to overcome a deficit of at least 13 points inside the final two minutes of regulation to win since Chicago overcame a 14-point deficit to also beat Cleveland in overtime in Week 8 of the 2001 season.

The challenge now is to keep the momentum high against a Bengals squad desperate to win.

"They've been on the wrong side of luck," Jets coach Robert Saleh said of the Bengals. "This team, they're still the AFC champs in my mind. They still look like the AFC champs, they're still playing at a very high level and we fully expect them to be exactly what we're seeing on tape, which is a really good football team."

BENGALS' BIG GUYS

Cincinnati spent big money on free agents La'el Collins, Ted Karras and Alex Cappa to bolster its offensive line. Another new starter was added in rookie Cordell Volson.

So far, the group hasn't been able to coalesce.

And it sure hasn't been able to keep Burrow out of harm's way. The most sacked quarterback in the NFL last year has already gone down 13 times in the first two games.

Colts face daunting challenge in rebound attempt vs. Chiefs

BY MICHAEL MAROT
ASSOCIATED PRESS

INDIANAPOLIS — The Indianapolis Colts understand the predicament.

They're winless after two games and have the NFL's fewest points. They've struggled to protect quarterback Matt Ryan or produce turnovers.

And they've lost six of their past eight home openers as Patrick Mahomes and the Kansas City Chiefs arrive in town Sunday.

So naturally, fans who have seen Indy start 1-5 twice in the past four seasons worry it could be happening all over again.

Inside the locker room, though, the Colts don't sound like a flailing team. They're confident, upbeat and determined to move beyond last week's embarrassing shutout at Jacksonville.

"Obviously, last week sucked, but last week doesn't matter anymore," running back Nyheim Hines said. "We've got to defend our home turf against a really great team, one of the best teams in the AFC. That's what we're going to do this week, we're going to defend Lucas Oil (Stadium) with pride."

Backing that up will almost certainly prove more difficult.

In a league where early season oddities now seem the norm, the Chiefs (2-0) appear to be in midseason form as they chase a fifth straight conference championship game appearance.

Mahomes, despite playing with a new cast of receivers, has completed 73% of his throws with seven touchdowns and no interceptions. The defense has played well, too, and because the Chiefs started this season playing twice in five days, they even had extra time to prepare for Indy (0-1-1).

But Mahomes and coach Andy Reid know better than to buy the conventional wisdom.

"I know what their record is — you can put that aside. This is their first game back at home and they've got good talent and good coaches," Reid said. "As you saw — or as we all saw (Sunday) with that day off — anything goes on any Sunday."

Besides, the Colts are motivated to prove the doubters wrong.

They've climbed out of big holes before by following an old formula — giving the ball to Jonathan Taylor, controlling the clock and stiffening up on defense. Indy didn't do any of those things well last week, but the Colts insist they will again.

All they have to do now is prove it.

BETTER INDOORS OR OUTDOORS?

Mahomes has done just about everything since taking over as Kansas City's full-time starting quarterback in 2018. He's won a Super Bowl ring, been the league's MVP and the Super Bowl MVP, selected to four straight Pro Bowls and continued to amass historic numbers. And he's done most of it while playing in a home stadium that can be susceptible to rain, snow and wind.

And while it's unclear whether the Colts will open their retractable roof or keep it closed, Mahomes was asked this week about posting better stats indoors than outdoors.

"I think most quarterbacks are usually better in indoors," he said. "But I think you just go out there and play the game. I never really notice it. I try to be better outdoors because that's where we play, and I want the playoffs to be in GEHA Field at Arrowhead."

No. 8 Kentucky seeks more improvement against Northern Illinois

BY GARY B. GRAVES
ASSOCIATED PRESS

LEXINGTON, Ky. — Cleaner play would really please Kentucky coach Mark Stoops.

Although the No. 8 Wildcats (3-0) have had good moments achieving their highest ranking since 2007, they haven't been consistent. Penalties, sacks and fumbles have stalled the offensive flow at times, while turnovers have abruptly halted momentum.

With Southeastern Conference play resuming next week at No. 16 Mississippi, Stoops wants his team to stop leaving points on the field and put them on the board in Saturday night's non-conference meeting with Northern Illinois (1-2).

"It's a matter of getting everybody on the same page," the coach said this week. "It's not a matter of are we able to do it or were talented enough to do it, there are no excuses. We've just got to play better, be more disciplined, but again, pay attention to detail."

Kentucky's record has provided encouragement, and last week's 31-0 shutout of FCS Youngstown State was a dominant wperformance.

The Wildcats outgained the Penguins 480-192 while posting their first shutout since 2009. The defense denied all 12 third- and fourth-down chances, and Carrington Valentine's end-zone interception preserved the shutout.

Kentucky hasn't yielded a point in six quarters, a span covering nearly 96 minutes. Meanwhile, quarterback Will Levis is coming off a 377-yard passing performance, his second 300-yard effort in three games. It took some of the sting off his two interceptions that offensive coordinator Rich Scangarello believes are the result of the QB's eagerness to make plays.

"There's just a couple of times where maybe the play isn't in rhythm or the snap was off," Scangarello said, "or sometimes he wants to make the play so quickly and his mind sees it before everyone else that speeds everything else up.

"Slow down, play within the game, let it flow, speed up when you need to. Those are little things as he plays that he's getting better at."
